Top deck! Tarot is having a moment

No longer the preserve of weekend witches, tarot is having a mainstream moment. The Wednesday actress and goth icon Christina Ricci is bringing out her own deck, Cat Full of Spiders, in September, which references her most famous roles through the card illustrations. Meanwhile, the documentary Look into My Eyes, which takes a look at the relationship between tarot-led psychics and their clients and is directed by Lana Wilson, the woman behind Taylor Swift's Miss Americana, was a hit at this year's Sundance. The fashion set are in on the act too: Dante Sabatino is the go-to tarot guy for Gabriela Hearst and executives at Chanel, we hear.
